CARDIUM HEALTH AND AIRLOGIX UNITE TO SHIFT FOCUS FROM DISEASE MANAGEMENT TO GREATER INDIVIDUAL HEALTH MANAGEMENT AND INTEGRATION

— Pioneers in disease management seek to transform healthcare with an inclusive people-centered model —

FARMINGTON, CT (September 14, 2007) – Cardium Health and AirLogix formally announce the coming together and “mixing” of their two organizations to create a single, integrated company that will bring innovative thinking and expanded capabilities to the healthcare market. The integrated company, represented with a new name and new brand, will be announced later this year. In the interim, Cardium Health + AirLogix will bring its message to the market at three prominent industry conferences in September and October.

Dan Cave, president and CEO of Cardium Health + AirLogix, has led the integration of the two companies and provided the vision for the combined organization going forward. “The current healthcare system has evolved over time and has reached a point where, by nearly all accounts, it is falling far short of what is needed. As an industry, we need to think beyond what currently exists and consider what’s possible. Cardium Health + AirLogix are coming together as one company to reconstruct healthcare with an inclusive people-centered model that will empower individual consumers, healthcare payers and providers to improve health, extend wellness and deliver value.”

Cardium Health + AirLogix is bringing its vision and message to the market at the 2007 Disease Management Leadership Forum being held this week at Caesar’s Palace Casino in Las Vegas, NV (booth number 501). Additionally, the company will have a presence at the 2007 Health Management Congress, Sept. 24-26, at Disneyland Resort, Anaheim, CA (booth number 217) and at the Florida Association of Health Plans, Oct.22-23, at Four Seasons Resort, Palm Beach, FL (booth number 3).

The [ MIX ] message at these conferences uses a bold and unexpected theme to convey the vision to reconstruct healthcare. Cardium Health + AirLogix are building something new with the recognition that life often gets in the way of health. Listen to the buzz – the best is yet to come.

About CH + AL [ MIX ]: Cardium Health + AirLogix is an experienced and trusted leader in disease and health management serving multi-market segments including self-insured employers, plan sponsors, and commercial and government health plans.
